NOTE.—The English compilation of the Annals of Ireland, commonly known by the "Annals of Clonmacnoise," was made by Conell McGeoghegan in 1627. The basis of it was an ancient chronicle in the Irish language, in part illegible through age and decay, which the compiler translated as far as he was able and incorporated with matter drawn from other sources. For an account of the compilation see O'Curry's Lectures, pp. 130-139. The present transcript is the oldest and most authoritative which is known to exist, and derives additional interest from being the copy which was used by the famous Irish scholar Roderick O'Flaherty, and which, by the marginal notes, bears evidence of the careful manner in which he studied and compared it. In many places he corrects the statements of the text, both as to chronology and names. This copy seems from footnotes of the scribe (at fol. 18b and 63b) to have been made in the early part of 1660. A hiatus between 778 and 905 (embracing six folios) has been supplied in a much later hand from probably a later copy. It was in the possession of Walter Harris, or at least was consulted by him, as his handwriting appears on the margin at patch of the first leaf. Afterwards it formed part of the great MS. collection of Michael I. Dugan; then became the property of the celebrated John Lodge and remained in his family till purchased with the remains of his MSS. for the Library from his great-grandson.

NOTE.—The papers contained in these three vols. consist for the most part of letters which passed between Dr. Anthony Dopping, Bp. of Meath, and his literary, clerical, and political friends. They came into the possession of Michael Ig. Dugan, a noted record collector, in the middle of the 18th cent., and passed from him to John Lodge, the celebrated archivist, from whom they descended to his son, the Rev. Dr. Wm. Lodge, the first Keeper of Armagh Public Library, then to his son, the Rev. Wm. Lodge of Killybegs, after whose death, on the sale of Ballinahone House, they were purchased with other manuscripts in June, 1865, for the Library, from his son, Wm. R. Lodge, Esq., being then tied up in bundles without any order, but subsequently arranged chronologically, and bound up in their present form by Dr. Wm. Reeves.

NOTE.—Bp. Reeves incorporated this List in his Succession List. Fol. bound in green vellum.

NOTE by Dr. Wm. Reeves on front p. as follows:—In the Bodleian Library, Oxford (Rawlinson B.504), is preserved a transcript of this Register, thus described in the 1st vol. of Macray's Catalogue or Index of the Rawlinson MSS.:—

"Codex Chartaceus in folio ff.45 Saec xvii. olim inter codices Warei, 15, postea comitis de Clarendon, 52; denique ducis de Chandos 2434 e cujus bibliotheca emptus fuit a Rawlinson pretio 5s. 6d."

"A copy of the Register of the Landes, Tythes, and other commodities belonging to the Priorie of Tristernagh in the County of W. Meath, taken out of the originall and written in the year 1618. In 2 parts, 1st the general charters and grants made to the Priory, and 2nd the charters relating to the appropriated Churches. Tables of contents are prefixed to each. At the end is the following note: 'Written by Christopher Fitzgerald of the Laragh, gent., at the request and direction of Harry Pyers of Tristernagh, Esq., in the year 1618.'

The present volume contains the original chartulary of the house, compiled from detached documents about the — of the century. It wants fol. 24 of the second part, containing litt. xlviii to lv., which folio has been abstracted since 1726, when the transcript bound up in this vol. was made, where the deficient articles are to be found at pp. 107-113. This transcript was made for Sir Henry Piers, Bart., in 1726; and it in turn wants a leaf containing the first two entries of the 2nd part, which was preserved in the original.

The original belonged at one time to Sir Jas. Ware who bestowed it upon Sir Henry Piers, Bart., the possessor of the dissolved priory of Tristernagh. In 1758 it was in the possession of Michael Ig. Dugan. Walter Harris in his additions to Ware's Bishops (Ware's Works, vol. I, pp. 250-251) refers to this Chartulary; and marginal notes in the transcript are in his handwriting.
